Adolescentes Owen Jones 2021-03-28 Adolescentes Y sus Cosas Los niños frecuentemente copian lo que ven. Son buenos aprendices y están programados para ser exactamente eso. Una vez que pueden caminar tienen unos diez años para aprender tanto como puedan antes de que se les de mucha libertad para caminar solos en el mundo. Esto difiere de país en país y de siglo en siglo, pero el principio es el mismo. Aunque la mayoría de los niños son duramente supervisados durante esos diez años, muchos niños pasan algo de tiempo solos o únicamente en compañía de otros niños. Esto significa que es una gran idea enseñar a los niños algunos datos de emergencia. En días tempranos, el entrenamiento de Primeros Auxilios para niños puede ser tan fácil como enseñarles el número de emergencias por si se ven involucrados en algún problema. Treinta años atrás mientras estaba viviendo en los Países Bajos, presencié un intento de suicidio por sobredosis. Mi amigo le estaba haciendo PCR y me pidió que fuera a la casilla telefónica y llamará una ambulancia. Fui, pero para cuando llegué ahí, 999 (el número del Reino Unido para emergencia no hacía nada). Miré alrededor en la casilla, pero no pude ver un número de emergencia y aunque mi holandés era fluido. Tuve que salir y parar a un transeúnte para preguntarle. Perdí algunos minutos y el murió. Antes de que un niño vaya a la escuela a los cinco o seis años, los niños deben conocer principios como: el número de emergencia, no hablar con extraños, no subir al auto de ningún desconocido, que la sangre es peligrosa y debe ser tratada y que los huesos se rompen, a tener cuidado cuando corren. Cualquier cosa adicional será un bono. Tú también puedes crear un kit de Primeros Auxilios con tu hijo. Pueden sentarse, discutir el contenido práctico, personal de un kit de Primeros Auxilios y luego llevar a tu hijo a la farmacia para comprar lo necesario. De vuelta en casa, puede

Inventing a Classroom Kathryn F. Whitmore 1994-01-01 What are the patterns of teaching and learning that make a classroom holistic? How do children invent oral and written language? How do they create the culture and curriculum of a classroom? How does the spirit of community and collaboration develop among children and teachers? What are the relationships between literacy, schooling, and socialization as they form among the children? These are a few of the broad questions that Kathy Whitmore and Caryl Crowell answer in this absorbing portrait of Caryl's third-grade classroom, "the Sunshine Room." Over the span of a school year, we watch the students in this bicultural classroom within a bilingual, working-class neighborhood work and develop together as a community of learners. It is the story of how the Sunshine Room, like many whole language classrooms, invents itself; and how in this process the children themselves are continually inventing oral and written language, culture, and curriculum. In two separate collaborative voices, the authors carry readers through several critical events in the life of the classroom: the process through which the children and the teachers negotiate the curriculum, the creation of a theme study about the Middle Ages, and a vicarious experience of the Middle East war through children's literature and discussions. On an individual level, the deep friendship between Seaira, an English-speaking child from the volunteer community, and Lolita, a bilingual Latina from the barrio, is symbolic of the bicultural experience fostered in the Sunshine Room.
